Adobe Photoshop Tutorials Beginner Tutorials Pro Tutorials 3D Tutorials Advanced Tutorials Ask HN: Should I invest in this company? - virtualt I think this company is fairly unique, if not genius in the way they market their program. This company looks like a cool side project while I'm at work so I'm bringing it home with me. My boss finds it interesting enough and has already asked about it. I can't believe the author would be able to make $10,000 to $50,000 through adsense/Google Adwords. I don't have a ton of free time, so if I can make a few hours worth of profit, I'll definitely do so. I don't have a ton of 'hype' in my area, but I do have a lot of traffic that will generate interest. If you are interested in hearing about this company, message me and I'll tell you all about it. ===== cperciva "I do have a lot of traffic that will generate interest" I'm assuming here that you're not going to be providing any "value" to the company -- nothing that indicates that you're going to be able to tap into existing market, or provide them with information that they couldn't figure out for themselves. I have absolutely no idea what value you can add to their business plan, so I won't make any judgments; but I'm guessing it's nothing more than "I'll make $5 per 10,000 people who click on this page". ~~~ virtualt I'm not making much money online, so why not spend my time on something that I enjoy. I've also been a pro programmer for a long time. I feel that I can come up with a good idea like this. I just have to find a way to maximize the value. ~~~ cperciva "...so why not spend my time on something that I enjoy_ I think that's a very bad reason to come up with a business plan. _I've also been a pro programmer for a long time._ That sounds like a very good reason. _I just have to find a way to maximize

The Advanced Reader's Copy of Destiny's Call is now available from the publisher at a price of $4.99 USD. One of the highlights of the Fall release schedule is a new Advanced Reader's Copy out that's not a comic, not an adventure, not a trade paperback...but a short story. In fact, it's a choice of three short stories for a price of $4.99 which is a substantial discount compared to the price of $16.95 for the game itself. I'd really like to have it on sale, but in light of the way I usually do the pricing, that's not possible yet. Maybe I'll work it out some other way, but you can get the discounts from Amazon.com and the other online vendors. It's already been shipping to the online vendors, so they should be posting the link soon. Some other highlights from this week: Pathfinder Companion: the Sunforge is shipping, CORE 3 is coming, I'm reading Chris Giarrusso's A Dark and Stormy Knight, and Randy wants more Star Wars. Thursday, July 14, 2011 I'm going to try something new this year: a podcast-style release schedule. For the next few weeks, I'll have a new series of posts that break down the releases for the upcoming weeks. I figure I can extend it to cover earlier sales in the future, if I need to (so far, the next sale dates have been three weeks in advance) or if there are any special releases (so far, I have no such plans). Anyway, the schedule goes like this: Saturday: Risus and I cover upcoming sales. Sunday: Risus reviews the solicitations. I provide commentary, usually keeping to a one sentence limit. Monday: A look at the usual Pathfinder core material. Tuesday: We look at RPG products, either from different publishers or games previously reviewed by Risus. Wednesday: Risus and I discuss RPG products, either from different publishers or games previously reviewed by Risus. Thursday: Risus and I discuss RPG products, either from different publishers or games previously reviewed by Risus. Friday: Risus and I summarize each product, either in fiction or in gameplay, whichever is most useful to the reader. We also have something a little different than last Friday - a guest review. I did it. I finally made a substantial effort to learn a new language! I've been a Certified Scrum Trainer and Scrum Trainer for the past three years. I learned a little bit of Spanish and French back in college, but I didn't do very well. I barely scored higher than a 1, and I also spent most of the class asleep. In fact, I don't think I ever actually learned anything. I'm a terrible student and...

Carbon steel arc welding Carbon steel arc welding is an industrial method used to join or weld carbon steel workpieces together by using an electric arc. The method requires the use of carbon electrode and a shielding gas (usually argon), which protects the workpiece and protects the weld from the heat of the arc.

History The current method of production of carbon steel was developed by Gahn & Pylann, a German firm of foundry proprietors, in the 19th century. The method was originally known as argon gas welding. The welding technique was patented in 1882 by W. H. Pfeffer and H. Thiessen in Germany, but the first patent in the United States was registered in 1885 in Illinois by R. K. French. The first workpiece was welded on 26 February 1886 by Heidelberg and Delmar and was the sleeve of an aluminum valve. The name arc welding was initially given to the technique by E. H. Blittersdorf, a director of Gahn & Pylann, and was officially patented in 1898. In 1911, the G&P company became part of what is now known as Arcelor.
