Looking at we see that 2.4 was released in September 2011, while the 2.2 branch of Apache has been around since 1998. Is there any real reason to use 2.4 now, since it's going to be an LTS release? A: It's not an LTS release. The 2.4 branch has had 3 releases. The 2.2 branch only had one release and was previously referred to as the 2.2.3 branch. The 2.4 branch will still receive security updates until 2020 and will be supported with bug fixes until April 2019. To assess the feasibility of a structured and psychometrically sound transition to community life for people with stroke. Stroke is associated with significant functional deficits and a host of associated secondary disabilities. Although much research has focused on physical recovery after stroke, the issue of living and adjusting in the community after stroke has not received as much attention. A systematic review of the literature was undertaken. Data sources included peer-reviewed journals, the Cochrane Library, CINAHL, PsycINFO, and PubMED. Medical Subject Headings and free text terms were used to identify studies. Papers were selected on the basis of their relevance and the methodological quality of the study. A total of 33 studies were identified. As a result of methodological problems, many studies were not suitable for systematic review. Those that were identified were divided into three groups: those relating to mobility, those relating to functional abilities, and those relating to secondary disabilities. There is evidence that many people with stroke are able to live in the community. This review demonstrates that there are transition programmes in the community. However, the programmes vary considerably and there are no guidelines for delivering such programmes./* * Copyright (C) 2014 - present Instructure, Inc. * * This file is part of Canvas. * * Canvas is free software: you can redistribute it and/or modify it under * the terms of the GNU Affero General Public License as published by the Free * Software Foundation, version 3 of the License. * * Canvas is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, but WITHOUT ANY * WARRANTY; without even the implied warranty of MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR * A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.
