Keymacro is the solution to address the problem of repetitive typing and more or less selecting a keyboard shortcut for a specific task in your browser. Get it for free! Keymacro can be applied both on desktop and mobile. Thanks to its intuitive interface, your working experience will be more productive. The app relies on the F1-F12 keys, which are commonly used to trigger the shortcuts of different programs. What's more, it can be used not only as a keyboard shortcut editor, but also as a dynamic keyboard shortcut manager, because it memorizes your previous shortcuts and applies them to the current input box. So for example, if you have Gmail and OpenOffice installed in your computer, the app will memorize your F2, F4, F8 and F9 keyboard shortcuts, allowing you to bind a combination of them to the Email button in the web browser. The same goes for the fact that your F6 shortcut for OpenOffice will be automatically applied to the Crop button in a photo editor of your browser. Keymacro is also compatible with Adobe Acrobat and Adobe Premiere Pro, so you can use your F8 shortcut for the margins in the PDF viewer. Keymacro comes with various keyspaces that let you create multiple keyboard shortcuts for a single program (for example, a combination of F4 and F7 can be used for exiting the browser), so you can make a shortcut for every web browser, MS Office document, web search engine, PDF viewer and more. Keymacro can save your settings for a specific program to a single file, so that you don't need to memorize the shortcuts every time you start the program. The settings are available for Mac and Windows. The app is completely free. You can't lose out on the benefits!
