To use the Clone Stamp, select a tool such as a soft brush or a faux painting tool. Then, click and drag to select an area of an image. To erase the selected area, click the Stamp button at the bottom of the Toolbox. To apply the Stamp to a new area, simply drag a new selection onto the image. To select a larger area, click with your mouse outside of the image. To select an even larger area, use the Spacing slider to set the maximum spacing between points. To get an overview of the Clone Stamp tool, double-click the tool to open the Brush Controls in a separate window. The Eraser tool allows you to erase individual pixels and selections to change the look of an image. To erase an image, click and drag the Eraser tool, or use the Eraser tool's Brush box. To work on just selected pixels, hold down the Ctrl or Shift keys while erasing. To erase a selection, click the Erase menu item in the toolbox. When you stroke, it's useful to think of the direction of the stroke as the stroke "flow." You can control the strength of the stroke with the Stroke box. You can also stroke with color gradients by using the Stroke Color Overlay tool. You can use various masking tools to apply effects, including filling an image with a color gradient, creating a stroke to simulate a brush stroke, or hiding certain areas of an image. You can draw a selection around a problem area, and then use the Adjustment panel to determine how you'll fix the problem area. The Layer Style panel is a folder of tools that work like filters.
