"The team at the FIFA Technical Department and our footballing community have used the new 'HyperMotion' technology to create unrivalled replications of what it's like to play the beautiful game in motion," said David Rutter, Executive Producer at EA Sports. "With the players delivering realistic emotion, intensity, and enhanced reaction, the FIFA 22 engine is the most immersive FIFA to date." Until now, players had to participate in extensive motion capture sessions to recreate each natural moment for motion-capture performance capture work. By using the "real-life" motion capture data from the FIFA 22 players, "HyperMotion" eliminates that need. This gives FIFA 22 the unrivalled ability to craft larger and more detailed levels, with a powerful engine which can support up to 32K on consoles and an additional 32K on PC, a breath of fresh air after last year's disappointing release. Already, the Brazilian national team players have been filmed by the EA Sports Motion Capture Studios and announced their FIFA World Cup squad today. What else can we expect from the official FIFA World Cup 2018 trailer? In FIFA 19, we got to meet FIFA 22's new Brazil national team. So, today, we get to meet the new FIFA World Cup 2018 (FIFA World Cup 20 for short) trailer too. If you haven't already seen it, we've embedded the FIFA World Cup 20 trailer below for you, but if you'd like to read and see more about the official trailer for FIFA World Cup 2018, here are a few things we'd like to point out: It looks a whole lot better than the FIFA 19 World Cup trailer It's got more World Cup history It gives us a closer look at three new features, while at the same time updating us on a couple of new gameplay features And it gives us a closer look at some of the new player models and hairstyles What we don't see in the trailer, we are assured is all new gameplay and dialogue features, as well as graphics enhancements to the overall experience. Here's what we can expect from the official FIFA World Cup 2018 trailer: Official 2017 FIFA World Cup Russia gameplay trailer. World Cup history and stadium updates. New gameplay features. New player faces and haircuts.
