In the settings menu of your PC or console we recommend adding netid for Forza Horizon 3 and your account on the Xbox 360.Q: Codeigniter 3: Serializing a form (w/ http post and ajax) So I have a form on my website in which certain form fields need to be post() to the same controller function. In my case, I need to post the form when the checkbox is selected, and when it is not selected, I need to do nothing. My problem is that the PHP functions I have tried will not work in the following scenario. The form currently has two "name" input boxes, each with a different value, both set to "default". They submit correctly to the function. I create a hidden input in the form with the same name as the "name" input, this way I can catch the value, then I can set it appropriately depending on whether a checkbox was checked or not. This does not work however, and does not submit to the controller function. Is there a way to solve this problem? Thanks in advance. -- An explanation: This is the code for the "POST" method of the controller. The "print_r" shows that the content type is "multipart/form-data". In the examples, I could set the checkbox to "chck1" or "chck2" to show the input. class Form extends CI_Controller { public function __construct() { parent::__construct(); $this->load->helper
