blistering disease which is difficult to diagnose in children. Although a wide variety of clinical presentations of PV in childhood have been reported, children with PV rarely present initially in the oral cavity. We report a 5-year-old girl with generalized PV who presented with oral blisters. The diagnosis was suspected based on histopathological and immunopathological findings. Treatment with prednisolone and cyclosporine A with daily oral retinoids led to complete remission. A review of the literature revealed only a few paediatric cases presenting in the oral cavity. Two treatment strategies are discussed. on the threshold
