Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a video signal delay circuit for delaying a video signal, and a reproduction apparatus including the video signal delay circuit. 2. Related Background Art In a video signal reproducing apparatus, it is known that a video signal subjected to time conversion by a reproduction apparatus and a video signal delayed by a predetermined time period are synthesized, and the synthesized video signal is reproduced. In order to prevent image-drop or image-black due to phase unbalance between the synthesized video signal and the synthesized video signal delayed by one field, it is known that the phase of the synthesized video signal is adjusted by controlling a phase of the video signal delayed by a predetermined time period. In the video signal delay circuit as described above, generally, a CR time constant circuit is used. In the CR time constant circuit, a capacitance value is set so that a video signal is delayed by a predetermined time period, and a resistor is interposed between a terminal to which the video signal is applied and a ground. In this case, if the set capacitance value is changed due to variation of a manufacturing process, an output video signal is not stable, and a
