For 2018, the ELAS programme will be focusing on offering younger volunteers the opportunity to attend their local ELAS Hubs. To be eligible to attend as a volunteer you must be in your first year of your second year of University and aged 24-25. ELAS Hubs are inclusive spaces which provide a unique opportunity for volunteers and young people from disadvantaged backgrounds to come together and engage in an activity together. ELAS Hubs are built up over a series of 12 weeks and volunteers will attend three activities each week to engage in their chosen activity. Activities will include F1 Formula 1 Training and exposure to the mind boggling technology of Formula 1 - this is the perfect way to discover new talents and career options. We also have plenty of ELAS Hubs in the UK which are already running successfully so if you're ready to make the commitment to serve, ask us to guide you. Alternatively, if you have friends who would like to be involved, please don't hesitate to ask.Flood 'could trigger surge' in numbers of cormorants nesting on shore Daffy the summer pet goose takes a break on the hillside of the Voula island in Corfu. A massive summer storm has caused damage to the island. Many of the local cormorant colonies nest on the shoreline of the island and on nearby trees, as there is no suitable nesting habitat on the island. Photo: Mike Loynes (AFP) - A massive storm sweeping the Mediterranean from Spain to Turkey has the potential to trigger a surge in the number of cormorants nesting on European shorelines and on trees, experts said Wednesday. A series of large storms has hit areas along the coast of Europe in recent days, causing widespread damage and killing livestock and wildlife on the shoreline and on the islands in the centre of the region. The storms battered the Greek islands of Corfu and Kefallonia on Tuesday with heavy rain and high winds, but it was the
