Battlevoid: Sector Siege is a game about strategy, tactics, and resource management; in which you will command an army of Marines and special units. Each side is attempting to break into a Sector; resulting in a war against alien forces as they attempt to conquer all of the sectors. As a human commander, it is up to you to command your men and battle the alien force, across 7 sectors. Defeat the enemy and ensure that they are unable to wage any further attacks. Key Features: Expand to take control of more sectors Strategic split screen multiplayer Unique alien races and player races Unique units, units and abilities New unit types, new upgrades Unique production systems A rich single-player story mode Build and place stations MultiplayerLet's make a left turn on to La Loma Sunday Jan 6, 2013 at 8:05 AM I'm not even in it for the milk. I'm running for U.S. Congress. I'm campaigning for the chance to shape my own laws and write my own code. On a related note: I really like milk. It's a stand-in for more than all its many positive attributes. But I'm running for U.S. Congress as a Democrat. If I were an American citizen born to GOP parents, I'd understand how important that distinction is in selecting the politicians I want to represent me.My first-ever run for public office is a bid to represent the 12th Congressional District of California, which spans from Santa Cruz to Monterey. This was handed to me courtesy of the nasty gerrymandering that went on following the Census and the massive Proposition 11, a measure that shrunk the district to create a political battleground. Mine was a strong partisan gerrymander, since red-leaning voters were packed into Monterey and my part of Santa Cruz County. This left a majority of voters in another Republican-leaning part of the district, which wasn't able to recover enough of the loss to return me to the House.Since then I've been working in a community development position, helping to push for affordable housing projects and getting my feet wet in political activism. All this time I've been trying to figure out where to go next. I'd like to get some sort of national platform so I can continue to work on real problems and propose real solutions. As a part-time example, I'm working to provide affordable housing to low-income students in my district. I want to provide

A Ghostbusters' Premium was released by Stern Pinball in 2012. It contains the only Ghostbusters table to feature animated holograms. The table was released as a standalone game, but it was also compatible with the Ghostbusters Vintage set, which features an original Ghostbusters table. Ghostbusters Premium: A Ghostbusters' Premium was released by Stern Pinball in 2012. It contains the only Ghostbusters table to feature animated holograms. The table was released as a standalone game, but it was also compatible with the Ghostbusters Vintage set, which features an original Ghostbusters table. Ghostbusters Premium Gameplay Video: Stern Pinball Ghostbusters Premium This gameplay video shows gameplay of Ghostbusters Premium in one of the two game modes in Stern Pinball Arcade. This table is a classic one of the big four. Back when Stern Pinball released a Ghostbusters table, this was THE table for fans of the original movie. With the release of the Ghostbusters 2016 Premium, fans will finally be able to use their table the way the original intended - and they're finally getting everything they were promised. Premium Features: Hologram-Activated targets. A glorious collection of animated holograms from the film, designed and developed by Reel FX Creative Studios, appear in the field around the playfield and make this table the first to have a hologram field. Each of these hologram effects has unique animations and lighting effects that fit the game. Banshee targets. An open-field drop target that lets players drop and collect a floating bane in the game (similar to a "X" bouncer), this drop target houses two open-field plays (eight drops total). Multi-directional ramps. Multifunction, two-way ramps can change direction in mid-flight to give players a very unique experience. Ball transfer. Taking inspiration from the original film, there are now two balls that can be transferred to the open-field drop target. Ball-ejection target. Like the ball-transfer target, this player-activated device lets players eject the ball, saving it from the open-field drop target. Movie theater. This two-sided display is a tribute to the original film. It contains hand-painted original art from the film and houses a vintage movie poster, ghost of Gozer and other items inspired by the film. Fan-shaped hazard target. An iconic device from the original film that acts like a magnet for ghosts, the fan hazard is a classic sight that continues on this table. Pass

Exercise Task Force 88: Hostile Contact Exercise was the largest live fire exercise conducted in the U.S. Army's experiment to develop the mobile biological and chemical agent-defense concept. The Task Force was originally conceived in May 1970 during the Vietnam War. The Task Force was created from 3rd Battalion, 82d Aerial Rocket Artillery, 2nd Battalion, 7th Field Artillery; the 75th Field Artillery Battalion (107th AAF Battalion); the 116th Assault Battery; and 4th Battalion, 9th Field Artillery. It first deployed from February to May 1971 and subsequently deployed from April, 1973 to July, 1974. The objective of the exercise was to practice of maneuver by gun, missile, and aircraft to contain the threat of chemical and biological agents in the event of a mass small-scale nuclear attack. The task force had 15 officers from the Headquarters Battery, 1st Battalion, 321st Field Artillery Regiment, the 5th Battalion, 509th Parachute Regiment (Mechanized), 14 officers from the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th Battalion, 28th Field Artillery Regiment, and over 300 soldiers of the 3rd Battalion, 126th Armor Regiment and its attached observer elements, reinforced from the United States Marines 86th Engineer Battalion, and the units of the 517th Engineer Company, 86th Engineer Battalion. The Task Force deployed some 450 soldiers across the entire U.S. Army Chemical Corps complex, and was involved with live-fire exercises at Ft. Hood, Texas, and at Eglin AFB, Florida. The exhibition of maneuver focused on the attackers taking cover and striking at long range. The troops demonstrated the same tactics that would be employed by counter-battery fire. The tactical nuclear missions conducted by the task force included simulated delivery of a tactical nuke and the simulation of salvos of chemical and biological munitions. Its mission had three goals: To conduct a large-scale chemical and/or biological agent defense exercise. To present a realistic warfare scenario to demonstrate the effect of the CBRNE response. To create new battlefield tactics, skills, equipment, and the means of support for future CBRNE operations. Exercise The purpose of the military exercise was to demonstrate the manner in which the Army Chemical Corps could react to a CBRNE agent attack. Reconnaissance The team members of the Task Force used on-site reconnaissance and aerial reconnaissance using the United States Air

"Battle Academy 2: World War 2 is the sequel to the 2006 hit title Battle Academy 2, with a focus on the European theater of World War II. Developed by Kalypso Media, Battle Academy 2 lets you take on the role of a world-class officer, assembling and leading the most elite unit on the battlefield. Strategically manage resources, research the latest technologies, and plan the perfect ambush in over 140 fully customizable scenarios. As you advance, experience dramatic historical shifts, and see how people from around the world give their ultimate support to the men and women of the Force. Also, some very nice artwork is provided to supplement the narrative of the game." Description: The back of this 400-page book provides the history and basic operation of the Army Air Forces before it was taken over by the USA Army in 1941. It provides a description of the World War II engine of the US Army Air Force. It also includes the official version of this book on an actual military issue in World War II with the title as "Army Air Forces Organization and Equipment". This edition is also with the correct date of 1941, but is without the 150,000 units detailed in the previous edition. It is also in the U.S. format which makes the book more convenient to read. Most of the many other official publications and manuals described on the book are included in this book. Description: This manual is a smaller version of the well-known official training manual "United States Army Air Force's Combat Tactical Training" and has all the operations and detailed training methods described in the book. The U.S. version is the "United States Army Air Forces Tactical Training 1944" which was published in 1946 and has an additional title on its cover. The U.S. Army Air Force version has the style of the American manual and the U.S. Air Force version has the style of the British manual. The United States Army version has all the training materials described in the book, but in a very much smaller scale. For details on both of these official U.S. manuals, see the description of the previous official U.S. manuals. Description: The official training manual "United States Army Air Forces' Combat Tactical Training" is the U.S. Army version of this book and it contains all the training materials described in this book with a combination of the U.S. and British manual styles and all
