A powered skeleton for Fencer. Through its legs, there are thrusters and dash cells built-in, allowing for consecutive thruster dashes.

Strategy Outline Eliminate all enemy units, especially the heavy weapon or shield unit first. Then it should be able to inflict enough damage to defeat even heavy weapon or shield units with a stamina point or two. The main "purpose" of this unit is damage output against heavy weapon and shield units - there is little point investing into protecting it, because it is much more important to deal a barrage of high damage than to wear down enemy shields, especially the shield of the enemy main artillery unit. Key Game Mechanics • The speed of this unit is not affected by the Movement Speed bonuses of Support Device units, or by the Movement Speed penalty incurred when using skills. • The Speed of this unit is boosted by the Movement Speed bonus of Support Device units. • The Speed of this unit is boosted by any skills the Support Device unit activates. • Although it is not affected by movement speed modifiers, it is boosted by the Speed effect of Support Device units. • Thruster dashes are not continuous. • The unit does not move when the attack icon is displayed on the screen. • It can be used in every situation. • You can only have one of this unit on the battlefield at any one time. • It is immune to sleep effects. • These units cannot be directly targeted by enemy units, but they can be targeted by support devices such as Mortars, Missiles, Turrets, etc.

General Strategy This unit is built for damaging heavy weapon or shield units. Thruster dashes are not continuous, so you can only activate it for a short time. However, the Thruster Dash itself provides the attack damage, so the damage output is very high.

Making Full Use of Its Strength This unit provides high damage output for very little investment. Since it can be used for melee attacks, it can be used to deal a barrage of damage to heavy weapon and shield units. For example, you can attack a Heavy Weapon Tactical Unit during its Rapid Fire attack. You can also attack shield units during their Rapid Fire attack or Shield Bash or Canister Reloading. Moreover, you can choose to attack the target before the Rapid Fire attack begins. The ideal time to attack is when the enemy heavy weapon or shield unit is reloading its weapon. If you target the unit after it finishes reload

Top 5 Ways To Raise A High Standard Of Well-Being In The Schools

As an educator, you understand the importance of an effective education for children. It will create a healthy future for them and positively affect the community in which they grow up. Therefore, you must offer a quality education that instills core values in your students. You must impart knowledge, values, and ethics that will help your students become responsible citizens. Furthermore, you should not only raise moral standards among your students, but also lead them in the right direction as well. What can you do to achieve this mission? You can practice strategies such as, “Five Reasons To Raise A High Standard Of Well-Being In The Schools.” They are as follows:

- 1. Prioritize The Learning Process The main thing that you must understand is that raising a high standard of well-being in the schools means helping the students to discover their purpose and find happiness in the process. Therefore, you need to direct your thoughts towards the learning process and help them with the development of critical thinking, problem-solving, and their ability to love and help others. When this strategy is carried out, the students will feel more valued. They will also find happiness in their learning and be able to make better choices after being inspired by their accomplishments.

2. Make The Classroom Environment Comfortable One of the main things that students need to feel comfortable is the classroom environment. There are many ways in which you can help them
