It is true that the one party may impose some slight restraint upon the power of the other; but it is not true that the right of the life tenant to change, during his life, the object of the gift is in any way impaired. For in the absence of all doubt about his intention, that interest which the law denominates "the right of the life tenant," is the power which he has to take up an object, to dwell upon it, and to retain it, by the means and in the manner which his own judgment, or that of his nearest friend, determines to be best. This power, and not the power of the remainderman to make a new appointment, is the life tenancy of the kind, to which the rule in this case is applicable. We think the decision of the Court of Appeals of New York is wholly unjustifiable, and therefore come to a different conclusion from that court, as to the right of the life tenant to make a new appointment, when once her power to do so has been determined. *408 The judgment of the Court of Appeals is reversed, and that of the Circuit Court affirmed, with costs. 1cdb36666d
