In Fit it, you step into the shoes of Ruben, an aspiring young Tetris player, and you must dive into a fast-paced Tetris game on the Xbox One. Grab your mouse and lay down a board of blocks with your Vive controller and keep Ruben spinning — he might need your help. In local co-op, you'll work together to complete the puzzle as you try to out-block your opponent in VR. In “Fit It,” players will use the motion controllers to play a fast-paced Tetris game in three challenging locations. As players start their match, they will be greeted by a helpful Xbox receptionist who will guide them through the game. Players will use both the trackers and their body to clear obstacles, “fit” falling Tetris blocks into places to help Ruben keep himself upright in a splash of Tetris. As players compete against each other, they will earn experience and power-ups to help them compete in the global leaderboards. Inspired by the classic video game Tetris, Ask Me Three is a unique experience that flips the rules of hide-and-seek on its head as two players must race to find three others in a single room with their senses working overtime. Ask Me Three is all about surprise, and will challenge you to make the most of your environment while being completely tactful to the people you're looking for. Discover the perfect party idea for any occasion. Cater a multi-course meal for the workplace, host a casual get together for your team, or create an event around a topic like the environment or science. So grab a few friends, a bottle of wine and your mood board, because you're about to play games that are as fun as they are educational! The game is playable for a maximum of 6 players, and has a maximum of 4 turns per game. Once all players have found a turner in the room, the turner is given a tile and must try to place it on the board so that it is surrounded by only their own tiles. Tiles can be placed on the board anywhere on it. The game ends when all pieces on the board are occupied, or when one player has placed all their tiles. On the surface, Ask Me Three feels like a fast-paced “hide and seek” game, but the game is designed for groups of friends to get a real sense of the characters they're playing as they try to

What's new in Horse Paradise - Pegasus Expansion Pack:

(game) Knuckle Sandwich is an indie 2D fighting game developed and published by TinyBuild Games. The game was originally created by Slack Games in 2014, and was successfully Kickstarted with an initial target of $15,000. A demo of the game was later released in 2018. As TinyBuild has no further plans for Knuckle Sandwich, it is now an out-of-date game, and is no longer being updated for Steam Early Access. Gameplay The goal of the game is simple - cover as many squares as possible. Different squares each earn different scores, which when added together, are then taken away with each hit. The game is 2D, and the objective is to reach a certain number of points or beat a timer. Square layout Both the main game and tutorial level are presented in a square layout. The square is divided in four quarters, with each quarter containing one corner of the square. The corners can be guarded by a vertical tile block, a horizontal tile block, or no guard at all. The damage a tile block does is determined by the number of lines in a tile. A line drawn across a tile blocks the action of the tile as a guard. The border of a square represents one line of defense. A tile block may have multiple lines across it. Guards may be placed at each level of a corner. Each corner receives a shield modifier to reduce the damage done by a hit. The shields may be stacked multiple times for protection. Level layout The most important feature of each level are the corners. Each corner is worth a certain number of points. When squares are pinned by a tile block that has a guard in it, the non-blocking tile becomes a counter, which counts down. When one or more of the corners are pinned, the resulting counter stops adding squares to the level, and instead subtracts squares. The counter used is in the shape of a star, and the amount of counters indicated on the counter is equal to the number of pinned squares. When all the squares of a level are pinned, a counter is used. All the counters end up adding to the same amount, which is the total number of squares in the level multiplied by the number of corners pinned. The final score for the level is the amount by which the amount is higher than the game set the player's maximum score. The game often sets the score at a positive integer multiple of 5000 points, so it will give more points for reaching a score 10000
