safe to use it for production on the 7 month virtualized environment? We will be using it on a Windows Server 2012, which we will be installing on hyperv on our test environment, then once its in place on the dev environment, it will be moved to the production environment, all done as a brand new virtual machine. A: It is very safe to use the latest version of Tridion on the latest version of Windows

Server and Hyper-V. I would encourage you to have a look at the latest version of Tridion (9), which is a great technology and comes with so many new features, including the long awaited features of the Event System and a long awaited features of data services (which I think you refer to in your question as out of the box installations). The good news is that there's no need to stop using the old version of Tridion.

Even if you need to migrate to Tridion 9 while keeping the existing data in the older version - it's easy to do. I have seen this very successfully done by many of our customers. Also please have a look at the latest version of the Tridion Event System, which makes it so much easier to create and manage events in the Tridion system. 1.
