All rights reserved.Last night it was officially announced that Cats star Sophie Thompson is to appear in the acclaimed horror film The Witch, directed by Robert Eggers. She will play a young woman who unexpectedly becomes part of a small community in northern New England. "I'm really excited to be a part of such an iconic film and am honoured to work with an artist as visionary as Robert Eggers," she said in a statement. "Films like The Witch bring a lot of attention to the horror genre but the stories they tell are so gripping because of the richness of them, so I'm thrilled to be part of something with this level of depth and honesty." Set in Salem, Massachusetts in 1692, the film charts the terrifying trials of a young woman accused of witchcraft. Samantha Morton will also appear. The film was described by the US distributor as "a shockingly raw re-creation of history from the witch trials period” and “a journey into the dark and sinewy recesses of the human psyche”. Cats, which stars Thompson as Jenny or Jenny Bobo, is released on 13 October. Monday, April 27, 2012 A Few More Pop Pockets Have you ever wanted to take a button on a jacket and turn it into a pocket? Okay, no, you haven't. Well, I used to want to, but the last couple of years I've been sick of it. That, and the fact that we are not allowed any pockets in church. We are simply expected to hold onto that cell phone and not put it down until we get to the end of the service. Thus the days of pop-pockets have come to an end. However, some of my friends have recently been adopting the "plastic didgeridoo" style of pockets. They were holding onto a 50-piece puzzle of a skylight when I saw them, and I couldn't resist thinking about how that would look on my
