I have my viewport set to width 100% but on iOS devices (iPad, iPhone, iPod) it is not working. The default view will load but the map will not show anything. I have tried setting the width to 150% (with or without overflow:hidden) and that doesn't work. I tried with and without the z-index set to 10. I don't see what else to try. EDIT: I'm not sure why, but "POI" markers are showing up on iOS on the "LONDON" test map. Not sure how to get "LEAN" markers to appear. Here's the js code (with a jsfiddle), and here's a screen shot of the map not working on iOS: var map = null; function initialize() { var london = new google.maps.LatLng(51.50, -0.10); var londonTraffic = new google.maps.LatLng(51.50, -0.10); var londonPhotos = new google.maps.LatLng(51.50, -0.10); var londonDetails = new google.maps.LatLng(51.50, -0.10); var londonPlace = new google.maps.LatLng(51.50, -0.10); var londonPOI = new google.maps.LatLng(51.50, -0.10); var londonLinks = 6d1f23a050
