Series With Some Of The.Q: Does the second "to" in "to soon" always refer to time? The present perfect is used to describe something that happened in the past and can still be felt. I will soon be living to 100. Does the same apply to the use of "to soon"? I will soon live to 100. Does it always mean it will happen in a short amount of time? A: The OALD define "to soon" as "very soon" and give this example: I will soon be getting to hear the news. A: Usually in your sentence "I will soon live to 100", it actually means that you are living now and you will reach 100 in the future. The last part of your sentence "I will soon live" is the time frame. By using the "soon", it makes an emphasis on that you live in the near future and reach 100. EDIT: I forgot to mention, when you use a time phrase, you need to use the present of "will be" because

"will soon" is not correct. / *
