Field of the Invention This invention relates to an organic light emitting display device, and more particularly, to an organic light emitting display device that simultaneously realizes semi-transparency and high aperture ratio characteristics by a structure in which a black matrix layer is formed below an organic light emitting device region. 2. Description of the Related Art An organic light emitting display device, which is one of flat panel display devices, is a self-light emitting display device that emits light by recombining holes and electrons injected into a light emitting layer positioned between a hole injection electrode and an electron injection electrode. Such an organic light emitting display device that uses such an organic light emitting device has high energy efficiency and a low operating voltage. For these reasons, the organic light emitting display device is widely used for a mobile electronic device. FIG. 1 is a cross-sectional view showing a conventional organic light emitting display device. Referring to FIG. 1, the organic light emitting display device is provided with a thin film transistor T on a glass substrate 10. The thin film transistor T serves as a switching element to control a current that flows to an organic light emitting device region D, and includes a gate electrode 11, a gate insulating layer 12 formed on the 6d1f23a050
