(Image via Shutterstock) the ability to add columns and a PDF footer for each page, which are triggered from the run-time list. The data binding for columns isn't a huge advantage, but I chose to use it because it keeps the DataTable from getting weird when I delete a column and it removes its column. Adding the correct column information to the string[] is done with a regular expression, but I haven't yet found an easy way to loop through them without using some cumbersome string manipulation, and I'm sure I could get away with it if I tried. When columns are added or removed, the columns are applied to the DataTable and the DataTable is updated with the correct headers, but c6a93da74d
