However, the role of the liver in the metabolism and disposition of drugs and hormones is not well understood. Thus, there are two major goals of the proposed research: 1) the investigation of the role of the liver in the metabolic disposition of drugs, hormones and natural compounds, and 2) the characterization of metabolic pathways of drugs in the liver. The major goal of the studies proposed in this grant is to investigate the role of the hepatic endothelium in the biotransformation of drugs and hormones. A well designed series of in vitro experiments will be used to determine the mechanism(s) by which the endothelium affects drug metabolism in the liver. 5ec8ef588b
