If there is no appropriate photo in your library, I would recommend converting everything to DNG or TIFF files before importing, then converting the TIFF or DNG files back to JPEGs after the image is processed. This gives you maximum control over the final camera quality and you don't have to worry about running out of room on your memory card, etc. Also note: because Lightroom 5 is incompatible with Lightroom 4 or earlier versions, your previous work will be lost and the details will not be stored in your catalog. There is no way around it.
