The TFS 2012 Directory Project Template allows you to migrate TFS 2010 to TFS 2012. It migrates the default TFS 2010 repository to a TFS 2012 Team Foundation Server. Migration of tasks, work items, projects, work items, work item categories and types and custom fields works as expected. You can also use it to migrate the TFS 2010 Team Project Service database. How to migrate: To migrate a TFS 2010 repository to TFS 2012, first you must create a TFS 2012 Project Collection. You can follow these steps: 1. In TFS 2012, right click on the desired TFS Project collection and select New-> Team Project Collection. 2. The new Team Project Collection dialog appears. You can also select the desired template from the drop down list. 3. The dialog changes to the TFS 2012 project collection dialog, where you can add Team Project Collections, Projects, Tasks, Work items etc. Using the TFS 2012 Directory Project Template: 1. In TFS 2012, right click on the desired project collection and select New-> Directory Project. 2. The new Directory Project dialog appears. You can also select the desired template from the drop down list. 3. The dialog changes to the new TFS 2012 project template dialog. You can also select the desired set of migration projects you want. 1. In TFS 2012, right click on the desired project collection and select New-> TFS 2012 Directory Project. 2. The new TFS 2012 Directory Project dialog appears. You can also select the desired template from the drop down list. 3. The dialog changes to the new TFS 2012 directory project dialog. You can also select the desired set of migration projects you want. Starting migration process When you have completed the desired number of projects, click OK and the migration process begins. It migrates the projects, custom fields, categories, types, work items, work items, and TFS 2010 default tasks to TFS 2012. Some of the following tasks can be a bit tricky to accomplish. In those cases you might want to try the following steps. Synchronizing the work items In the migration process, the TFS 2010 work items are copied over to TFS 2012. Since some of the work items in TFS 2012 are not configured, their information is not available. You might want to first synchronize the work items in TFS 2012. 1. In TFS 2012, select Manage. 2. The Manage Work Items dialog appears. 3. Click Synchronize. 4. The synchronization process finishes. 5. A dialog appears stating the synchronization is completed. 6. Click OK.
