What do you think will be the next big thing? If there's one thing that's a given, it's that we think of the next big thing after every new price drop, every new feature, and every new improvement as it comes out. It's the ultimate game that we play as photographers. It's also the very definition of a "pump and dump;" it's explicit when a stock photo agency (even a group of them) injects the markets with a few genuinely great images and an opportunity to cheaply grab some. I work for two stock photo agencies, and that's one of the things they do. They are currently working hard to find entire new markets and themes in the run up to Christmas. I'm a big believer of a big fall in prices before the new year. It's a great time to buy and sell and to pick up some great images. Yes, as a photographer I love to shoot and use only my own images, but as a marketer, I look to see what's hot. Sometimes in photography, a certain bag of tricks is important. Sometimes you need to know what you don't know. This is one of those times. All of these features make for a great all-around package. What's more is that Adobe has now put in an enormous amount of work by adding a lot of these features into the free Lightroom CC. How do these features come so quickly? Because they're fundamental to the design and workings of this package. BELOW: The "Investigations" tab allows you to stack various filters, adjust brush size and opacity, and apply a mask. BELOW: The "Clarity" tab lets you apply various clarity adjustments to your photos and videos. BELOW: The "Pen Options" tab allows you to use brushes, line, gradient or shape tools.
